>> Lawrence: What we've got is, as you can see, bedroom. The victim was found between the bed and the dressing table, lying on the floor with the head closest to the wardrobe.

There's signs of a disturbance, you can obviously see. Nothing has been moved, the Crime Scene Investigators has been to the scene and has videoed and taken crime scene photographs. There are signs of a search by the offender potentially! Alternatively, the occupants may just be a messy person.

There seems to be signs of some sort of struggle, you can there's a lamp, there's a plant and there's a chair on the floor. We've got a footwear mark, that the Crime Scene Investigator has photographed and has...has recovered.

There is a knife which we have left for you to view, which is on the bedside table. That knife would appear to have some blood marks on it.

>> Lawrence: Okay, can you give me briefing please on the postmortem, because I understand that you've get the details?

>> Student: Yes, there's blunt trauma to the head, there's bruising to the upper torso and the leg. There's a single stab wound to the chest, which is three inches deep and three-quarter inch wide.

There was also a stab wound consistent with a single point edge, pointed knife. We think the knife on the bedside table matches the description of what the postmortem says.

End.
