

Academic Presentations Toolkit- Transcript

Hi, my name is Claire and I'm an academic skills advisor with UniSkills here at Edge Hill University.

This toolkit has been designed to support you with skills specific to delivering academic presentations.

Being asked to design and deliver a presentation as part of your course might feel daunting.

However, it's important to realise many students feel the same way and it's a skill you can improve with practice.

Presentations are often used as forms of assessment at university, as they allow you to build on essential skills such as communication, critical thinking and the ability to present complex ideas effectively.

Feeling confident presenting is important not only at university in the workplace too.

It will enable you to develop your digital skills, as well as demonstrate that you can share information in a structured and engaging way.

Whether you're being asked to deliver your presentation online or in person.

This toolkit will provide you with practical tips and strategies to unlock your presenting potential.

Let's get started.
