

Exam Preparation: What would you do differently? (video transcript)

We asked around, what would you do differently if you had the time again? Here are the main takeaways.

- Start making your revision materials as soon as possible.
- Get organised earlier to save time because it's worth it.
- Ask questions about anything you're not sure about, including your exam modifications and any procedures that happen on the day.
- Do mock exams with friends like trying things under exam conditions, for example,
- Taking roles as patient and examiners, or timing responses for a written exam.
- In general, being more creative with revision strategies.
- Work with friends to get feedback on your work and see if there's anything that you've missed.

Realising that everybody's different, so not comparing yourself to others and focusing on your own efforts. Take more breaks and look after yourself.
